Coroner's Inquiry Indicates Jacobs' Death Caused by Kick of Horse

Body Found in Pasture of Farm Near Eldorado

Coroner Elmer M. Gibbons today said an investigation conducted by State's Attorney Robert V. Wilson, Sheriff William T. Barrett, Atty. D. F. Rumsey and himself indicated that Alex Jacobs of near Eldorado died after being kicked by his horse.

Jacobs' body was found in a pasture yesterday morning about 100 yards from his house near Bixler school south of Eldorado, by Louis Kato, a Harrisburg friend who had stopped by to visit him. Jacobs lived alone.

Coroner Gibbons says he learned that Jacobs had planned to go to a cornfield Friday morning to pick corn, taking his horse hitched to a sled.

When found he was lying near the sled and the horse, with harness on, was roaming around in the pasture.

At first, Gibbons said, it was not known what caused the man's death, as there were no witnesses, but when the body was moved to the Bean and Tanner funeral home, discovered was a broken collar bone and two bruises on the chest.

Gibbons then secured the state's attorney, sheriff and Atty. Rumsey, representing the family at the request of a relative, and the four went to the scene for further investigation. Marks on a sled board at the front of the sled revealed the board had been kicked by the horse, he stated, and a neighbor told them that the horse sometimes had kicking spells.

Gibbons said that Jacobs apparently hemorrhaged until he died. He said he also learned that the man suffered an asthmatic heart condition.

The coroner said he would hold no inquest, that the result of the inquiry conducted would be that Jacobs came to his death by being kicked in the chest by a horse.

Mr. Jacobs is survived by three brothers, John, Gabor and Enoch Jacobs, and a sister, Barbara, all of Hungary, and one niece, Olga Cornett of New York City.

Funeral services will be Tuesday at 10 a. m. at the Bean and Tanner funeral home. Rev. Glennon Sims, pastor of St. Joseph's church, in Equality, will officiate and burial will be in Wolf Creek cemetery.

Held for $75,000 Robbery at Paducah

ST. LOUIS — Amos Wesley Bruce, 32, is being held by police here for investigation by authorities of Paducah, Ky., in a $15,000 jewelry store burglary there Saturday night.

Bruce was arrested while driving a car which matched the description of one given in a five-state alarm. Paducah police sent two witnesses here who identified Bruce as one of two men seen in the vicinity of the store at the time of the burglary.

Tighman Tade, Paducah's chief of detectives, said he planned to question Bruce about another burglary committed Feb. 25 in the same manner as the one Saturday night. About $15,000 in jewels was taken in the first burglary as well.

News Charges Hodge Fires 15 Employees

Chicago Paper Says Ex-Saline Democratic Chairman Included

CHICAGO — The Chicago Daily News said today that State Auditor Orville E. Hodge fired 15 employees after the newspaper began an investigation of Hodge's payrolls.

The News said in a story written by George Thiem of its Springfield bureau that the dismissals occurred after the newspaper began looking into "reported payroll padding and other irregularities." Hodge issued a statement saying "more than a score" of employees were laid off in May as a result of "a shift in procedures" to "strengthen the examining forces" for financial institutions.

Of the 15 persons listed in the story, he said, 2 were dropped from the payroll "in error" and 11 others were "released" or had resigned during the month.

"In part these changes reflect normal turnover," he said. "But for the most part the purpose has been to reserve a large share of the auditor's appropriation for personal service in order to secure additional qualified" examiners.

Hodge did not identify the 2 dropped by mistake or the 11 who were removed from the rolls.

The story said the 15 who were fired included "Hodge's relatives, Democratic county chairmen and committeemen, and friends and relatives of members of the Assembly," Hodge is a Republican.

The firings occurred, the News said, "a few days after a Daily News reporter demanded to see Hodge's office payroll."

One of those fired was ex-Saline County Democratic Chairman Harry Erton of Harrisburg, the newspaper said. It said Erton was drawing a salary of $600 a month.

The story identified another who was dismissed as Anna Mae Harris, wife of State Rep. Lloyd (Curly) Harris (D-Granite City).

Others among the 15 fired, according to the story, included David G. Hodge, Granite City, a cousin of the auditor; Georgia C. Fitzgerald, Granite City, the auditor's sister-in-law; James O. Lowrance, Granite City constable; Lucille E. Koval, Mount Olive, secretary to State Rep. Paul Powell (D-Vienna); Thelma Bailey, Anna; William H. Barnett, Vienna; J. B. Clark, Harrisburg; Sam L. Malone, McLeansboro; Bessie Meiers, Cicero; and A. C. Cope, Kathryn Nuccio, Angelo Ruggiero, and Otto Webb, all of Chicago.

Tourist Trade Meeting at SIU Tomorrow

Representatives From 31 Counties Invited to Attend

CARBONDALE, Ill. — A workshop for people interested in developing tourist trade in southern Illinois will be held on the campus of Southern Illinois university Tuesday.

Representatives from 31 counties have been invited to discuss organization of county and area tourist industry groups.

Principal speaker will be Robert J. Shaidnagle, executive director of the Lake of the Ozarks Association in Missouri.

University faculty members will propose that an area tourist association be set up which would include an advisory council with one member from each of the 31 counties.

Purpose of the regional body would be to coordinate the efforts of many groups seeking to boost the economy of Southern Illinois with tourist dollars.

General objectives which will be outlined at the workshop include encouraging private capital to invest in new kinds of businesses and small industries that would attract and accommodate tourists.

The SIU Small Business Institute would offer consulting services and assist in promoting tourist trade. Close working arrangements would also be worked out with state and federal agencies in continued development of tourist areas and facilities.

Workshop registration will be held from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m. in the east lobby of the University school. Ralph Bedwell, director of the Small Business Institute, will open the business sessions in the University school auditorium at 4 p. m.

Shaidnagle will give a brief talk on the problems of tourist industry development before the conferees split up for discussions in one of six workshop groups.

These will be devoted to: Recreation Activities; Special Area Attractions; Historical Points of Interest; and Transportation Facilities.

Following a banquet at 6:15 p. m. in the University cafeteria, Dr. William Tudor, acting director of Area Services, will be discussion leader at an organizational session in the Library auditorium. Shaidnagle will give an address on "The Tourist Industry Challenge in Southern Illinois."

Recognized as one of the top travel promotion experts in the nation, Shaidnagle took his present post in 1950. Since that time, the annual volume of tourist business in the Lake of the Ozarks region has risen from $17,000,000 to $42,400,000 last year.

Reveal Full Denunciation of Stalin By Khrushchev; Says Many Killed

WASHINGTON — Nikita S. Khrushchev, in his now famous secret speech in Moscow last February, denounced the late Josef Stalin as a "sickly suspicious" tyrant who murdered "many thousands" of his Red comrades to satisfy his half-mad lust for "superman" power.

The full force of Khrushchev's unsparring denunciation of the Soviet dictator became known today when the State Department made public a 26,000-word text of the speech. Khrushchev delivered it Feb. 24 before stunned Red leaders attending the 20th Congress of the Communist Party.

The department cautioned that it "does not vouch for the authenticity" of the document, which came into U. S. hands from a confidential source. But it said the text is "understood to have been prepared for the guidance of the Communist Party leadership outside of Russia."

The document disclosed that Khrushchev's post-mortem indictment of Stalin was even more bitter and far-ranging than was indicated by their piecemeal leaks at the time of the speech.

Some of the newly disclosed Khrushchev charges: Stalin plotted to "do away" with just resigned Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Trade Minister Anastas Mikoyan. These two "old Bolsheviks" would not "be here today" had not Stalin died on March 5, 1953, before he could carry out his plot against them.

Fomented Tito Break
Stalin needlessly fomented the 1948 Kremlin break with Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, and boasted that "I will shake my little finger—and there will be no more Tito."

"Stalin was a very distrustful man, sickly suspicious," he said. "He could look at a man and say: 'Why are your eyes so shiny today?' Or 'Why are you turning so much today and avoiding to look me directly in the eyes. . . . Everywhere and in everything he saw 'spies'."

Stalin ignored British warnings of the Nazi invasion in 1941. When the attack came, Stalin flew into a cowardly panic, his "nervousness and hysteria" and his "blundering" interference with military operations "caused our army serious damage" and caused hundreds of thousands of Russian troops to be slaughtered. His first order to the Red army was not to return Nazi fire—because Stalin was not convinced an invasion actually was underway.

Khrushchev, who served in the Kremlin's inner circle throughout the terror-filled Stalin regime, painted a graphic picture of what it was like to work under a dictator like Stalin.

"Stalin was a very distrustful man, sickly suspicious," he said. "He could look at a man and say: 'Why are your eyes so shiny today?' Or 'Why are you turning so much today and avoiding to look me directly in the eyes. . . . Everywhere and in everything he saw 'spies'."

Funeral services were held today at 2 p. m. at the Cave-in-Rock Christian church. Burial was in Cave Hill cemetery. The Rose funeral home was in charge.

Chicago Secretary Fatally Shot While Standing in Front of Club in Michigan

NILES, Mich. — Police today sought a prankster who planned on shooting out a large, tavern window but instead killed a beautiful Chicago secretary.

Mrs. Marion Davenjay, 27, was shot through the heart early Sunday morning as she stood outside the Club 46 waiting for three friends to join her.

Police said the 22 caliber bullet which killed the woman was "practically" the only clue they had in the mysterious slaying. They discounted murder as a motive and said the fatal shot probably was fired by a prankster who wanted to shatter the large window in front of the club.

Mrs. Davenjay, a secretary at the Canadian Consulate in Chicago, was in the club with Gene McCane, South Bend, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Don McClellan, Detroit. Her friends said she left the club shortly before closing time to go across the street to buy some beer.

The young woman placed the beer in a car and was waiting outside the bar for her companions when the bullet struck her. Police said she staggered forward about three steps before collapsing.

Officers said that close questioning of her friends had failed to turn up a motive for the crime. They said they were practically without clues, besides the bullet, and had "no plan of action to speak of."

Mrs. Davenjay, who was separated from her husband, Joseph, of New Orleans, left Chicago Saturday afternoon for South Bend where she met McCane. From there they drove to Niles where they met the McClellans, who were friends of McCane's at the club.

Money Found In Possession Of Ex-Convict

Hurls Bills in Gutter; More Hidden In Hotel Room

BALTIMORE, Md. — Police today recovered $4,635 in "musty" bills which they described as part of the fabulous $1,219,000 Boston Brink's robbery loot.

They reported finding the bills in the possession of pudgy-faced Jordan Perry, 31, Boston ex-convict, and arrested him on an "open charge" pending a more complete investigation.

Lt. George Lawer of the Baltimore police said serial numbers on the bills showed "positively" that they were part of the gigantic haul that 11 Halloween-masked bandits carted out of the Brink's counting house in Boston more than six years ago.

The FBI was more cautious. Washington headquarters said the serial numbers "correspond" to the Brink's bills and its office in Boston said reports that the $4,635 was Brink's money are "substantially true."

Police said Jordan was arrested after they received a tip that he changed a suspicious-looking $10 bill at a shooting gallery here. The proprietor, they said, reported that the bill appeared to have been "washed."

When arrested, they said, Jordan tried to get rid of several hundred dollars by throwing the bills into the gutter.

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. William G. Stratton today angrily branded as "complete poppycock" charges by his Democratic opponent for governor that 15,000 state civil service workers were fired in one year.

Stratton also told a news conference he is studying whether to call out the National Guard to patrol highways and reduce traffic deaths on the Fourth of July.

He said that if he calls a special legislative session it will consider only a Korean War veteran bonus and will not take up a fixed limit speed law.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says:
New Secretary Of Interior
Should Reverse Giveaways:
Fred Seaton Opposed Tide-
lands Oil For Coastal States;
He Proposed Val Peterson Of Nebraska For Cabinet Post.
(Ed. Note — The Brass Ring,
good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, today goes to Fred Seaton, newly appointed secretary of the Interior.)

WASHINGTON. — Fred Seaton,
the new secretary of the Interior,
is one of the best men Eisenhower could have picked for that key spot. His appointment may mean a complete change in the so-called Eisenhower "giveaway" policy.
But tempers sizzled privately a bit among old guard Republicans when his appointment was sent to the Senate.

The opposition was not personal. It went much deeper and embraces the entire Eisenhower policy on Tidelands oil, public power,
natural gas, wildlife refuges,
and even Hell's Canyon. Seaton was opposed to giving Tidelands oil to the states when he was in the Senate and might well reverse Eisenhower policies as secretary of the Interior.

Inside fact is that Seaton first tried to appoint his friend Val Peterson, another leader of the liberal GOP, as secretary of the Interior. But when Republican leaders were confidentially sounded out 10 days ago, opposition
erupted from old-line Nebraska Republicans.

NEBRASKA BITTERNESS

This climaxed a long series of attempts by Seaton to put his friend Peterson in high position, beginning just before Ike took office when Seaton urged Peterson as secretary of Agriculture or secretary of the Interior.

Ex-Governor Peterson, however, had run against crotchety, conservative Sen. Hugh Butler in the Nebraska Republican primary,
and Butler would neither forget nor forgive. He blocked the appointment. He even blocked Peterson's appointment as U. S. ambassador to distant India.

Finally Peterson was appointed to Ike's White House staff, which doesn't require Senate confirmation; and later to the thankless job of civil defense administrator,
where he has done an A-1 job.

Peterson, also a liberal Republican, also opposed the natural gas lobby and the Tidelands oil lobby.

So last week Nebraska Senators Curtis and Hruska not only frowned on him as secretary of the Interior, but sent word back to the White House that the man to appoint was another Nebraskan, Clarence Davis, now undersec-
tary of the Interior.

Davis, however, was frowned on by Seaton and other White House advisers just as much as Peterson was frowned on by Curtis and Hruska.

For Davis had been closely identified with the Al Sarena give-away of the Rogue River National Forest, with the encroachment of oil companies on wildlife refuges
and with McKay's generous policy toward the private utilities.

So Seaton, in turn, blocked Davis.
In fact, he had been pulling wires backstage for a month to keep the reactionary Davis from becoming secretary of the Interior. Seaton's motive in this was not to get the job for himself. He had no idea that lightning would strike him. But in the end that is exactly what happened.

TIDELANDS OIL

When Seaton served in the Senate to fill out the unexpired term of the late Kenneth Wherry, it became known that he was not going to vote with the gulf states and various Republican senators to give Tidelands oil to Texas, Louisiana and California.

This caused dismay and indignation among gas-oil lobbyists. It was in the closing days of the Truman administration, and Senate moves were being counted to override his expected veto. So Governor Shivers of Texas called on Gov. Val Peterson of Nebraska, who had appointed Seaton to the Senate, urged that Seaton be persuaded to vote for Tidelands oil.

"I have no control over the Senator's vote," Peterson replied, thereby winning the undying opposition of gas-oil senators to his own appointment to the Interior Department later.

Seaton was in Germany where he and his wife were adopting two children when the Tidelands oil debate started early in 1952.
But he rushed back in time to be recorded against the bill.

SMALL-TOWN PUBLISHER

Seaton is a midwest, small-town newspaper who understands people as well as politics. Through his friend, Sen. Frank Carlson, he got to know candidate Eisenhower during the 1952 campaign and became one of his close advisers.

He was also one of his liberal advisers; joined the group on the Eisenhower campaign train which wanted to throw Nixon off the Republican ticket when his $18,000
personal expense fund was revealed.

Seaton did his best to persuade
Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon not to bolt the Republican party, helped persuade the sometimes nervous Eisenhower that the press
would not bit him; after election was appointed assistant secretary of defense to hold the wobbly
public-relations hand of Charlie Wilson.

In that job, and later as a member of the White House staff, he has handled tough and touchy political problems. He urged the firing of GOP National Chairman Wes Roberts when Roberts was revealed as a Kansas lobbyist.

He was delegated to fire Ed Man-sure as boss of the General Services Administration, was also delegated to smooth out the farm snafu, and went to Des Moines to persuade five midwest governors
not to censure the Eisenhower administration on farm policies.

Seaton's policies as secretary of the Interior should be almost directly opposite to those of generous Doug McKay.

Seven Persons Are Slain on Farm in Canada

STETTLE, Alta. (U.P.) — Royal Canadian Mounted Police searched today for a Canadian legislator on whose farm seven persons were slain.

John Clark, 41, a member of the Alberta legislative assembly, was being sought to be told his wife and four children had been murdered. He also was wanted for questioning about the slayings.

Clark's wife, Margaret, 38; three daughters, Jeanine, 9; Anne, 8; Lyndee, 7, and a son, Ross, 4, were found shot through the head Sunday by a neighbor.

The other two victims were identified as George Anderson, 21, a farm hand, and William Olah, about 20, a member of the Royal Canadian Navy who was visiting the farm.

The victims were found early Sunday sprawled in the 56-year old Clark house on his 1,000 acre farm, 110 miles southeast of Edmonton, by G. M. Parrett, a neighbor.

All the victims except Olah were dead when Parrett found them.
Olah died later in a Stettler hospital without regaining consciousness.

All seven were shot with a small weapon, presumably a .22 caliber rifle, police said.

Neighbors said the Clarks were not happy in recent years. Clark also was reported to have suffered a nervous breakdown last year and neighbors said he had "acted strangely" since his return from a speaking engagement in Saskatchewan.

Parrett was the last known person to see and speak with Clark.
They spoke Saturday and Clark said he was going on a fishing trip Sunday.

Bombay Police Thwart Attempt to Assassinate Prime Minister Nehru

BOMBAY, India (U.P.) — Bombay police said today they had thwarted an attempt to assassinate Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru Sunday
when he was the target of a stone-throwing mob at a public gathering.

The anti-government riots, second within a year, stemmed from demands by the Marathi language-speaking populace that Bombay be included in a Maharashtra state. They broke out when Nehru refused and said Bombay would remain under federal control for "several more years."

Police arrested more than 1,000
demonstrators and received a tip that a bomb would be thrown at Nehru Sunday when he addressed an outdoor meeting. Stringent security precautions were taken and Nehru was unscathed.

More than 60 persons were injured in the rioting and at least 1 person was killed as police fired 23 rounds at surging, angry crowds in four separate districts of Bombay. Police were forced to use tear gas against the crowd that heard Nehru speak.

Bombay police said they prevented the assassination by herding the thousands of persons present into bamboo enclosures so small that any trouble could be localized. Any "doubtfuls" were kept a full 150 yards from the platform where Nehru spoke, a distance too far to easily hurl a bomb.

The only persons allowed nearer to the Prime minister were trusted members of his own congress party and newspapermen known personally by the police. Nehru arrived under heavy guard and was protected by 1,000 policemen.

Crowds surged toward his car
when he left, but police cars roared to form a shield and paralleled his car on the broad roadway as he drove into the city.

COMPANY MAKES KOREAN FEEL 'AT HOME' AT DINNER—Chan Woo Lee, Korean government employee who is chief telephone engineer of the Pusan section, is receiving six months training in telephone traffic engineering at the General Telephone company. Lee's only dislike about America is American food, which he thinks is rich and hard to digest. To make him feel "at home" company officials staged a real Korean dinner for him at Oakcrest Country club in Springfield. The menu included sukiyaki, rice, Korean fish, salad, tea, fruit and apples soaked in salt water. Left to right are Lee, Jack Tutt, manager of Oakcrest; Ken Shaw, cook, and Burton W. Saunders, president of General Telephone.

Refuse to Review Convictions of Four Puerto Ricans

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court today refused to review the convictions of four Puerto Rican nationalists who shot up the House of Representatives in 1954.

The Puerto Ricans are serving prison terms ranging from 16 to 25 years for the wild attack in which five congressmen were wounded.

The high court rejected an appeal by defense lawyers that the defendants—three men and one woman—should have been given mental examinations before trial, with the government bearing the burden of proving them sane.

In other major actions at its next-to-last "decision day" of the current term, the high tribunal:

Ruled 6-3 that states may crack down on strike violence under their own laws, even in cases where the federal Taft-Hartley law would apply. The majority said Congress, in outlawing some forms of union conduct in the Taft-Hartley law, did not mean for the federal government to supplant the states as "the natural guardians of the public against violence."

Sidestepped a ruling on whether an employer may fire a known Communist without regard to job security provisions of a union contract. The five-man majority dismissed an appeal from a California Supreme Court ruling that such firings are permissible under "public policy." The majority did not specifically uphold the state ruling, but simply held that the case was adequately handled under state law. A minority of three justices held the high court should have reviewed the case.

Bury Young Intern on Ledge In Yosemite Park

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Robert Franklin Johnson, young San Francisco intern who fell to his death while hiking alone in rugged country, was buried Sunday on a narrow dirt ledge high above the floor of Yosemite Valley.

His grave was close to the spot where he tumbled hundreds of feet down a sheer cliff a week ago while on a climbing expedition in the national park.

"There is no more beautiful place in the world," Oscar A. Sedergren, chief ranger of Yosemite National Park, said. "The site has a view of all the valley."

Johnson's body was spotted lodged in a crevice on the wall of the canyon Saturday by a helicopter pilot.

An eight-man rescue party reached the body early Sunday and attempted to return it to the top of the cliff. They managed to move it about 50 feet to a dirt ledge but decided it would be too dangerous to attempt to move it further.

From Marion Man

MARION, Ill. (U.P.)—The federal government has seized two restaurants owned by Frank Hampton of Marion for alleged non-payment of federal taxes.

Federal tax liens filed in the Williamson County recorder's office here indicate Hampton owes $1,917.84, mainly in federal withholding taxes for the last two quarters of 1955. The state of Illinois also filed liens for $275.86 in state unemployment insurance payments.

Tom Cooley of the Internal Revenue Service office at Mount Vernon said Hampton's restaurants in Marion and Herrin and an automobile were seized Friday.

Said a sale would be held in about three weeks to satisfy the government's claim unless Hampton pays the back taxes plus interest before the sale.

Congress May Investigate Graham's 'Drunk' Charge

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —
The Rev. Dr. Billy Graham's speech before the U. S. Chamber of Commerce annual meeting in Washington may end up in a congressional investigation. Several congressmen want to question the evangelist more about his charge that an unnamed American diplomat and his wife got drunk at an also unnamed Far Eastern post.

"In my travels around the world," Dr. Graham told over 1,000 Chamber of Commerce leaders from all over America, "if it would not embarrass the United States, I could stand here and tell you illustration after illustration as to why some of the countries have some tension toward the United States today. . . I can tell you about one country. I was burned up!

"We have an American diplomatic official in one country who threw a party a few weeks ago. He got dog-drunk. His wife was drunk. They made a spectacle in this Far Eastern country. And American relations couldn't be lower. And we, as taxpayers, paid
the bill."

This story was a serious one,
but the evangelist told a flock of others, each good for a laugh. After the laughter subsided, he pitched the moral.

He opened with a story he heard in England about the Archbishop of Canterbury, whom British children are taught to address as
"My Lord" or "Your Grace." Once
the Archbishop stopped a little boy and asked, "Son, how old are you?"

And the little boy answered,
"My God, I am 10."

The moral which Billy Graham drew from this was that he was as frightened as the little boy, before all those Chamber of Commerce executives.

THEN HE TOLD ONE about a census taker who encountered a half-wit in Graham's native North Carolina mountains. The census taker asked the half-wit how many were in his family.

He said he had a father, mother, two brothers and a sister. His father was in prison. His mother was in the insane asylum. His sister was in the detention home.

One brother was in reform school and the other was at Harvard.

Asked the census taker: "What is your brother studying at Harvard?"

Answer: "He's not studying anything. They're studying him."

The moral of this, Dr. Graham said, was that when he went around he wondered if he was not being studied.

Next was the story about a doctor who hung up his shingle in a little village. His first patient was an old man. He gave a long history of symptoms and where he felt bad. The young doctor couldn't figure it out, even in his books.

"Tell me," he finally asked.
"Have you ever had this disease
before?"

The old man answered, "Yes,
many times."

The young doctor said, "Well—
you've got it again."

"And that is the way with this world," moralized Dr. Graham.
"We've got it again. The problem that we wrestle with in 1956 with atomic power is the same problem that man has wrestled with for centuries."

THE TITLE of Dr. Graham's address to the Chamber at this
"For Human Betterment" session

Tall Drifter

By W. Edmunds Claussen

Copr. 1956 by W. Edmunds Claussen, Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Frank Ude joins a trail outfit driving horses through the hills. It is attacked and Frank stays behind to help fatally wounded, Ed Rambaut, who tells him a way to escape. After Ed dies, Frank makes his way out of the canyon.

II

Frank Ude found the narrow canyon mouth that Rambaut had talked about. He passed a shoulder of rimrock and leaped for the opening. The thought went flashing through his head that a gunman might be concealed here, waiting with his rifle. But the raiders obviously did not know this country as well as the Cash outfit, and so Frank gained the canyon.

He swung about within the granite walls and let his gaze return over the slope. Hopelessness spread through him as he considered his unhappy condition. His horse, and Rambaut's, had vanished while he helped Rambaut aground. He was afoot in this barren rock that would give up a terrific heat as soon as the sun rose. A haunting recollection returned of Cash's unbridled laugh and he thought cryptically at least he wouldn't live long enough to know the tortures of thirst, not with this crew of killers on his trail.

Temporary panic seized him while he debated the wisdom of heaving away his carbine in order to conserve his strength. Then he decided to carry the gun as long as possible. He turned into the canyon facing the blackness in a sober mood. Behind him death would be stalking this same corridor any moment. A few hundred yards deeper the funneling walls brought him sounds of hoofs scraping shale. At once he slipped into the deepest shadows.

Cash's low call reached him clearly. "Frank Ude?"

He stepped into the center of the canyon floor noticing that Cash's hand threw back the dull gleam of a gun. He caught the hazy outline of a second horse trailing on its reins. It was his own mount, the big boned chestnut gelding he would not have liked losing, and a breath of long-held air escaped his lungs. "Glad you came back, Emmett," he admitted, feeling fresh admiration for Emmett Cash.

The man loomed high on his saddle, a solid, virile figure that fitted naturally onto his horse, and topped with a wide hat. Again Frank sensed that infuriating distrust of his own convictions about the man, Satan or saint? The man, with a personality that compelled Frank to admire him, was an enigma.

Emmett's look lay beyond them as he drew idly. "I was able to catch your gelding. Ed's horse was hit and pretty bad spooked. He got past us. How about Ed?"

Frank shook his head. "He's dead."

"Too bad. I saw the way you went off your horse to look after him. Wasn't any skin off your ears, Frank. A fellow that sticks that way to a friend is a man I can't afford to lose."

"That why you came back?"

Cash smiled at him with a dry, frail bend of his mouth. "That's right. The rest of the boys're scattered over the hills, which is what we'll be doing. In a half hour we'll be out of reach of this killer crew."

"The horses, Emmett?"

Emmett Cash stared at him thoughtfully a moment, then inclined his head. "For the time being our horses are gone. We'll sink our spurs in that crew later on. What else can we do now? Yates has got his arm shot bad and Ed's dead. Let's ride south and meet again in Cashtown—three days from now."

Frank thought then as he drew himself aboard the big gelding that Cash gave up his horses too easily. There was no fear in the man, he was sure of that. But an outfit such as the Cash crew didn't choose their separate trails back to the home ranch. If these were actually Cash's horses, he would die in an attempt to avenge this raid. Frank didn't consider his bunch licked this bad. It sent a wave of anger through him.

He asked sharply. "Who were the raiders, Emmett?"

"Your guess, Frank." "You surely know!"

There was a heavy moment of stillness when he saw the hardness of Emmett's mouth gradually unlimber, until he thought the man would laugh. At him, he wondered, for giving an impression of greenness? Then Emmett shook his head. "I don't know," he insisted stubbornly.

Frank touched rowel points to his gelding urging him about. The chestnut was in a bad sweat and breathing heavily. This was a great horse, with deep chest and strong heart that could keep him running long after the average cowhorse gave up fighting. Frank had seen Emmett's interest build in the gelding many times since yesterday. But the chestnut had been a week without grain, and ridden so hard that now in any run before the raiders' horses he wouldn't have a chance. Frank felt his anger strike constantly deeper at Emmett, suspecting him a liar. Every man in this outfit knew why they had been raided except himself. Unsmilingly, he threw a fresh question at Cash.

"Where they your horse string?"

Emmett's answer came immediately. "They were. For delivery at Fort McHenry. Frank I'll not stand being questioned again." They rode stirrup to stirrup until the canyon opened into a wide valley running parallel to the one in which they had been surprised by the raiders. It was sooty dark here, with plateaus of granite standing dark and forlorn on either hand. This was the way the breaks would be for miles to the banks of the Colorado to the westward; it was an excellent country for eluding pursuit. Frank noted as he keened the stillness there was the faintest sound of the raiders closing behind them.

Emmett pulled in and sat with his weight shifted, studying him in a sober look. Finally he made his decision.

"We split here. I'm riding on after Yates and have a look at his arm. Try not to forget I came back after you."

"Because of Ed Rambaut," Frank murmured quietly. "Maybe. I pulled you out of a kettle—don't forget it. We'll meet in three days at Cashtown. It's a half day's ride east of the spot you joined us, in case you're not sure of this country."

Emmett's eyes were still searching some tell-tale revelation to his expression and Frank knew he puzzled the man. Ed Rambaut had tried to reach unsuccessfully into his past, and Emmett, he knew, wanted to know the same answers but hadn't asked outright. It would have to lie the way it was; Yesterday he had unexpectedly cut the trail of Cash's string heading north, they had been disposed to find a place for him in the crew, probably because they read in him a certain toughness that was necessary to their profession. Now he wondered about that profession while they in turn wondered just how tough he could be.

Abruptly it came to Frank that Cash was still waiting an answer to his question. He said, "I'll meet you in Cashtown. Then what?"

"More horses. Delivery to McHenry."

Frank let a moment slide. "Don't your range ever run dry? Do you just let riders slope in and steal what they want, then ride back after another string?" Emmett's head went back and his laugh rolled through the breaks. Frank couldn't see his face in the darkness, but he visualized the broad mouth parted widely in the laugh, his red hair lying damp against the high forehead and the glint of amusement that struck from Emmett's eyes. It was the way he recalled a dozen times these past two days. No man could appear so carefree and be totally bad. Emmett brought his hand down and slapped his thigh. By now they could hear the raiders clamoring nearer through the canyon, but Emmett was unperturbed.

"You're all right, Frank. Just one thing. Stay out of the Skull badlands. If you see you're riding onto the malpais turn back. They ain't nothing to fool with."

Frank sat considering but not giving much heed to the warning. He was to remember the soberness of Emmett's tone later. He said jarringly, "The horses? Where do you get them?" Emmett grinned. "So far, my range never ran dry."

"I'll be there," Frank answered, and puzzled anew as Emmett labored his gray through a side passageway between the outcroppings. Emmett used his spurs hard—much harder than was necessary. Harder than a man would use them who knew the love of horseflesh. Emmett was not the man who would take pleasure in breeding fine stock. He was, Frank Ude admitted quietly, a horse thief. But the question remained from whom was he stealing?

Turning his gelding into a gentle downslope Frank decided to find out.

Heavyweight Bouts IN THE Sport Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (U)—There are two bouts this week which, depending on their outcome, can produce the next heavyweight champion of the world or almost cause the abolition of boxing.

The first is Monday night in London, where ancient Archie Moore defends the light heavyweight championship of the world against Yolande Pompey. The second is Friday night at Madison Square Garden, where Floyd Patterson is 3 to 1 over Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson.

If Moore and Patterson don't win, it figures to set boxing back some 250 years.

Because if they lose, you might see Jackson meeting reluctant Bob Baker come September for the heavyweight championship of the world which Rocky Marciano cast aside.

And that one wouldn't draw flies in a candy store.

There is a certain amount of trepidation in boxing circles that the busy Jackson just might upend Patterson come Friday night. I, for one, have a slight suspicion that this is a wishful fear promulgated in the hope that it will draw a few customers. Because Patterson figures to win this one from here to next Monday and twice on Sundays.

The theory is that the Hurricane is the most unpredictable battler the ring ever has seen. He is alluded to as "simple, stolid and in great condition." Some hint that he apparently is so immune to pain he must be studying yoga.

That's a painful allusion, in itself, to those who remember how Lou Nova studied the mystic art before he met and was massacred by Joe Louis. Yoga figures to work out in direct and unchangeable proportions this time around, too.

There can be no doubt but what Jackson is a primitive man. So earthy that he still can't read or write—although he is pretty good with those figures printed in the corners of the nation's currency.

Patterson, it should be added, will be in just as good condition as Jackson. This is a young man with a dedicated purpose, and as he shoots for a September title bout with Moore he also has the added ability of being able to take out the opposition with either hand.

Moore, meanwhile, may face even more trouble than Floyd. Making the 175-pound limit is a terribly weakening process for old Archie and this Pompey is no stiff. Still, the incentive is there. Once past this, Archie is certain to go in against Patterson for the Marciano bauble.

Yet, standing hopefully if not too aggressively in the wings, is Baker.

Should Jackson beat Patterson and Pompey defeat Moore, both would be, for the time, eliminated from the heavyweight elimination. That leaves, and it's slightly leaving, only Jackson and Baker.

Boxing just couldn't be that unlucky.

Funeral Services Tuesday for Mrs. Knute Rockne

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (U)—Messages of sympathy from all over the nation came today to the family of Mrs. Knute Rockne, widow of the renowned Notre Dame football coach, who died Saturday.

Mrs. Rockne was 64. She died in St. Joseph's hospital after a lingering illness.

As preparations for funeral services Tuesday were under way, messages from sports leaders of the present and the Rockne era were received from all parts of the nation.

Included among them were words of sympathy from men who played under the great coach when he made gridiron history at Notre Dame from 1918 to 1930.

Rockne was killed in a plane crash March 31, 1931.

Mrs. Rockne will be buried beside his grave in South Bend's Highland Cemetery following a Solemn High Mass in Sacred Heart Church on the Notre Dame campus.

Legion-Stars Split Games With Nashville

The Harrisburg Legion-Stars and the Nashville, Tenn., Red Caps divided a two-game series at the VFW ball field over the week end in a wild set of games. The locals drubbed the visitors in the Saturday night contest by a 19-3 score but the Red Caps came back strong Sunday afternoon to hand the Legion a 13 to 0 lacing. Both clubs had a little difficulty getting used to the lights in the first game but the locals settled down after gifting the visitors with three runs in the first frame, and held them scoreless the rest of the way. Meanwhile, the locals started scoring in the third frame and before the game ended had amassed their 19-run total. Big Bill McNew was the local hurler in this fracas and he limited the Red Caps to five bingles in gaining the win. Majors started for the visitors and he gave way to Sharp in the seventh who in turn was relieved by Sanders and Bracey in a wild eighth inning in which the Legion scored seven times.

Don Karnes, Harold Guley and Jim Parton paced the local swatters with two hits each. Dick Romanosky caught all the way for the winners. Jordan and Kendrick shared the catching job for the Red Caps.

The Sunday afternoon game got off to a good start with Don Wallace going on the hill for the locals and Sanders starting for the Red Caps. The visitors cracked the scoring ice in the third when they tallied three times and added a marker in the fifth to take a four run lead. It was in this inning that Wallace suffered a deep spike wound in his pitching hand and had to retire. McNew came on and held the Red Caps in check until the eighth when they scored three more runs and then sailed the game away with six run splurge in the ninth. Don Stout was McNew's reliever in this inning after the visitors had collected four straight safeties.

Sanders went the route for the winners and held the locals to three hits with his assortment of flashing speed balls. Rod Smith, Raymond Sisky and Frank Logsdon collected the hits. Vinard and Romanosky shared the catching for the locals while S. Jordan caught all the way for the Red Caps.

Next Sunday the Legion will travel to Nashville, Tenn., where they will participate in a three way double header with the Old Hickory Barons and the Nashville Elite Giants.

Tigers Sweep Series with Yankees to Climax Drive Even Surpassing Pirates'

By United Press

It took a drive even the Pittsburgh Pirates didn't match during these last two hectic weeks, but the Detroit Tigers are back in the American league pennant race.

And no less an authority than Manager Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees says, "They're in it to stay, too. I've been saying all along they're a good club and now they're proving it." Stengel should know because Bucky Harris' Tigers dealt the Yankees 6-3 and 7-4 losses Sunday to complete a sweep of a three-game series. The sweep gave the Tigers 11 wins in 15 games—a .733 pace since they were mired in seventh place on May 20. Even the giddy Pirates have travelled at "only" a .692 pace since May 20 in turning the National league race upside down.

Tigers Equal Mark

Southpaw Billy Hoelt struck out seven batters and scattered nine hits to win his fifth game in the opener, and Al Aber picked up his second win when the Tigers staged a three-run outburst in the 10th inning of the nightcap. The three straight losses mark the Yankees' longest losing streak of the season and the double loss was the first they've suffered since last August. At the same time, the Tigers' six straight victories equal the longest winning streak in the majors this year. They're tied with the Boston Red Sox for fourth place, only two games behind the second-place Chicago White Sox.

The White Sox took advantage of the Yankees' double loss to slice two full games off their lead with 12-0 and 9-2 triumphs over the Baltimore Orioles. Sherman Lollar and Dave Philley had four hits each in the opener as Dick Donovan won his third game while Jim Wilson pitched a four-hitter to win his third game in eight days in the nightcap. The White Sox rapped out 29 hits in the two games.

The Cleveland Indians beat the Washington Senators, 8-4, in 12 innings but dropped the second game, 7-1, and fell into third place. Vic Wertz singled home the tying run in the eighth inning of the opener and then clinched the victory.

Local Coal Belt Team Loses to Pinckneyville, 5-1

Pinckneyville defeated Harrisburg, 5-1, in a Coal Belt league game played Sunday at Pinckneyville. Meyers, Pinckneyville hurler who also pitched for Southern Illinois university this spring, struck out 18 local batters and allowed only three hits. Mitchell and Corger pitched for the local team and permitted only four hits. Spain was the receiver for Pinckneyville and Cowger and Vick for the locals.

Harrisburg will play a Coal Belt game Wednesday night at the VFW diamond against Carbondale. The Carbondale team is composed largely of SIU players.

Rollins Scores 12 Points in First Game

Oliver Rollins, Carrier Mills youth who joined the Globetrotters basketball team this spring, played his first ball game with the team recently at Odsal Stadium in Bradford, England. Rollins scored 12 points against the team's opponents, the Texas Cowboys, with the Globetrotters being the winners.

This week the group will go to Belgium to begin a continental tour.

ILLINOIS AND KENTUCKY STATE POLICE OFFICERS joined at the Kentucky approach to the Clements bridge before the opening ceremonies Friday and the photo shows the difference in the summer uniforms authorized by the two states. The Illinois officers are the ones wearing the heavy felt hats, the conventional collars and ties and long sleeves. The Kentucky officers wear tropical-type hats, and shirts with open collars and short sleeves. For normal June 1 the Kentucky boys would have been far more comfortable than the Illinois officers, but Friday turned out to be very, very chilly. Illinois officers shown are Captain Elza Brantley (right), Lt. Earl Pogue (next to Brantley) and Sgt. Herbert Bramlet (standing in center). (Daily Register Staff Photo)

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D.D.
Written for NEA Service

"I'm against sin," say many people who talk in generalities. All of us are opposed to sin, but sin has not become sufficiently unpopular to wipe it from the face of the earth, or even from most of our lives.

Of course we are not all big sinners in a class with Hitler or Judas. However, we do succeed in sinning enough to need some redemption on the part of God. We need some forgiveness by our fellowmen. We all need some frequent cleansing of our souls and minds.

In the same way that we have progressed from the routine Saturday night bath to more frequent ablutions, we need more frequent soul cleansing. It is not enough to merely go to church on Sunday and to let the clergyman pray for us. We, too, must pray every day and probably more frequently.

One member of a family who goes to church on even frequent occasions cannot meet the spiritual requirements for the household. It is not enough that the children go to Sunday school. Religion can not be delegated to others. Nor can it be taken periodically like a tonic.

We do not become acquainted with God by merely reading the Bible, nor by only listening to sermons. Both God and we live 24 hours a day. We must live with Him all the time.

It is not enough to be "against" sin and "for" God.

Longfellow got the information for his poem, "The Song of Hiawatha," published in 1855, from an Indian historian who lived at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Truman Plays Piano Of Famed Composer

SALZBURG, Austria — Pianist Harry S. Truman played happily on the piano of composer Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart today when he visited the low-ceilinged room where the famed musician was born more than 200 years ago.

After he hit several sour notes on the tinkly, pedal-less instrument, the former American president grinned and commented:

"With this instrument, you have to play the piece the way it's written."

Six U.S. Soldiers Killed in Germany

MUNICH, Germany — Six American soldiers were killed and a seventh seriously injured in three car accidents near here Sunday.

Labor Must Not Dominate, President Says

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower said today that labor organizations, as well as the government, "must serve the individual and not seek to dominate."

Mr. Eisenhower made the statement in dedicating the new AFL-CIO national headquarters — an eight-story building just across Lafayette Square from the White House.

He also said the labor leaders attending the ceremony were welcome in his office "any time to discuss matters of mutual interest."

His informal dedicatory remarks were warmly friendly toward labor. But he leveled his praise with a reminder that the labor movement, alongside the government, bears equal responsibility for service to the people and constant vigilance over the freedom and security of the individual.

He said that many years from now when the new building has given way to even newer structures, he hopes that people can attend other dedication ceremonies "truly prosperous, secure, at peace and above all, free."

He said he also hopes that ceremonies in the distant future can continue to "salute a free trade unionism which makes equal opportunity for all."

Mr. Eisenhower's hosts were AFL-CIO President George Meany, William J. Schnitzler, secretary-treasurer, and a host of other union leaders.

Three Dead In Love Triangle

TOLEDO, Ohio — Three persons were killed here Sunday night in a weird series of events involving a love triangle and the accidental death of the slayer by his own hand.

Police identified the victims as Mrs. Grace Tolson, 19; her alleged lover, Harry Kedrie, 23, and Mrs. Tolson's husband, Frank, 21.

Police said Tolson apparently went to the apartment of his estranged wife and shot her in the chest with a .22 caliber pistol. In the apartment at the time were the Tolson's children, Patricia, 8 months, and Stephen, 21 months old.

The apartment was over a delicatessen store owned by Kedrie and his brother, Edward. Harry Kedrie heard the shot that apparently killed Mrs. Tolson while he was waiting on a customer. He went outside to the stairway leading to the apartment.

As Kedrie reached the steps, Tolson was on his way down and spotted him. He shot Kedrie in the chest, but Kedrie grappled with Tolson and the gun went off again, this time killing Tolson.

When police arrived, the two men were dead on the sidewalk near the stairs. They went upstairs to find Mrs. Tolson dead from a bullet wound in the chest. The children were unharmed.

Detective Capt. Edward Meeker said Tolson had visited his wife three weeks ago at her apartment and told her, "I'm going to kill somebody."

Hundreds of film industry figures, from stars to stagehands, were expected to gather at 4:30 p. m. EDT to say a last goodbye to a man who had spent 41 years in their business.

Hersholt died of cancer Saturday night at his Beverly Hills home, days after a testimonial dinner which honored the Danish-born character actor who appeared in almost 500 films during his long career. He was 69 at his death.

Indicate Big New Discovery in East Texas Oil Field

DALLAS, Tex. (UP)—A test well report was interpreted by oil men today as indicating a big new discovery in east Texas which, a company official said, might mean as much as 25 million barrels of oil.

Robert Kepke, executive vice president of British-American Oil Producing Co., said the well was down to 10,300 feet in the prolific Woodbine sand, which lies between two rich fields.

Four major strikes have already been made in east Texas, and the new one would be the fifth. The well, named the No. 1 Bessie Wisenhunt, is located seven miles northeast of Mineola, Tex.
